IF I WERE ON IT...

The Old Fool had lost his donkey. While he was looking for it, he kept repeating, "Thank God!"
The townspeople laughed and asked,
"Old Fool, why are you thanking God all the time?"
"I am grateful that I was not on the donkey,"
The Old Fool answered, "Or I would be lost, too."

You'll be charged $100,000 for this service. Galvek takes over Earth's powers, landing at the center of the ship. This does not cause real damage to the player, but leaves them extremely vulnerable to the highly damaging dragon fire, which it almost always uses if it can tie the player. View Source This fight takes place in an instant area. On death you can pay Torfinn to recover lost items. Zorgoth gave it the name "Galvek" because it was the Dragonkin word for "Destiny". It uses all three forms of combat, and a special dragonfire attack that is able to kill players in one shot only if they don't move away from it, regardless of their protection. Galvek is the final leader of the Dragon Slayer II mission. Also, walking in circles around Galvek or back and forth on the north or south side allows the player to avoid the rocks and the fire of the dragon. Galvek takes over the power of the water, flying to the east side of the ship. While the defense lowers the special attacks works, after each stage the defense of Galvek is restored. From time to time you can throw firebombs which, if touched (bombs cover a 3x3 radius), will inflict an incredible amount of damage and most likely kill the player instantly. Elite Speed Changes[edit | edit source] Data Change February 2nd 2022 (update) Fixed a problem where Galvek waves killed safe players while changing phase. Name Description Difficulty Category Galvek Speed - Trialist Kill Galvek in less than 3 minutes. Players either die to avoid the Dragonfire attack or die while Galvek teleports them, with the result that the player ends up in a bomb and dies. Stage III (Water) [Modify|Modify source] Galvek tsunami attack during phase 3. Phase IV (Terra) [edit source] Attack on the grave Galvek during phase 4. Galvek A a special race of dragons, as A more resembles snakes and has the capacity to control other dragons. If you try to evoke a Thrall, you will be informed that "It is too wet to resurrect a Thrall here.A" Phase I (Fire) [edit|edit source] Galvek's fire traps during Phase 1. Galvek's defense in this phase can be lowered but in the move to Phase II its defense will be lowered to its basic value. Phase III could be Galvek's most lethal phase', as the player A incredibly limited to moving if Galvek launches his tsunami and fireball later, leaving almost no margin for error. Galvek is on the bow of the ship, attacking the players with Melee and Magic. If hit by these waves, the player sustains more than 100 damage¹. Galvek still uses the one-hit fireball at this stadium. It may occasionally throw wind gusts that drain the player's stats of 2 and make 40% run. Galvek assumes the powers of air, flying to west side of the ship. These firebombs are always placed in the same position, and will explode after a certain period of time. Mechanics[edit|edit source] Galvek has 1,200 health and four phases, each consisting of 300 Hitpoints. The effects of the super fire protection do not work against one-hit special . It can also launch a pink dragonfire, which disables all prayers to impact, and orange dragonfire, which behaves like a normal dragonfire. Galvek also starts using Ranged attacks here and uses his Ranged and Magic attacks at random. It can occasionally send tsunamis (which behave much like firewaves during a fight on the A Kingdom Divided mission) along with the standard one-hit fireball. He tries² to throw a final fireball to the player, but collapses³ before he can do so, instead incinerating his creator. Its ground attack can be avoided simply by moving a He can occasionally throw ground bullets, which if the player is captured in, will be tied for several seconds. If I die a dangerous death a second time Recovering all your items, they will be lost completely. After the mission, players can fight Galvek again through the Pool of Dreams in the Myths Guild, where the dead are considered secure. The use of the potion alone will not much reduce the damage, and the use of the shield alone will reduce damage significantly. Galvek was then killed by the player in a long battle. The following combat tasks involve Galvek. He was a dragon incubated by Dragonkin Zorgoth, who had planned to use Galvek to destroy humanity after being imprisoned for years because he assumed himself that he was a violent dragonkin. However, the use of a super antifira potion in combination with the anti-dragon shield cancel all damage caused by its orange and pink dragon attacks. If next to the tile that has been struck by the dragon's fire, the players take the half of the damage instead. The Dream List near the swimming pool also tracks the number of player's killing and the fastest killing time. If the player is out of the playing field, he can use a blue attack that approaches it. Phase II (air) [EDIT | Modification source] The Galvek hurricane attack during phase 2. Galvek also uses remote attacks much more commonly at this stage. phase.
